

Mary Cacioppi

Mary Cacioppi was born and raised in Rockford, Illinois. She has 16 years of dedicated experience in community development through a variety of roles in community and economic development organizations. Through this experience, Mary had the opportunity to work with community leaders in areas such as community transformation, education, and workforce development programs. She also coordinated, produced, and managed the inaugural TEDxRockford event.

She currently serves as executive director of One Body Collaboratives, a faith-based organization working to engage the faith community in the City of Rockford, and she also serves as project manager for the Bridges Out of Poverty Rockford Region project. In this role, Mary brings her community together using a collective-impact approach to reduce poverty by convening a poverty-reduction community of practice, providing Bridges workshops, and partnering with agencies and nonprofits to implement the Getting Ahead curriculum.

Mary is an experienced leader with the ability to create community partnerships across multiple sectors to achieve impactful results. She also has an extensive background in strategic planning, project management, and executing plans of work.
