

Renee' Parsons

Renee' Parsons has served in nonprofit and Christian ministry arenas around the United States for 25 years, and her expertise is in business development, community engagement, and career counseling. She believes that all people have purpose. If they are motivated and given proper understanding, the right opportunities, and appropriate training, they can tap into that potential!

In her professional life, Renee' has worked as an executive in various organizations, grant proposal writer, soft-skills trainer, and conference leader. She has also had numerous other roles and responsibilities.

Currently she is the Executive Director of Business Cultivation Foundation in Ashland, Kentucky. She also founded Central Jobbank and Opportunity Center in Ashland, and she has served as vice president of community engagement for Sage Holdings/Sage Technology Center in Owingsville, also in Kentucky.

Renee' was introduced to Bridges Out of Poverty by The Bellefonte Foundation, which is connected to a local hospital. From then on, she "was hooked" on the Bridges process, and she has since completed the lifetime trainer certification in Bridges Out of Poverty.
